2. JOY OF GIVING

How can we expect our children to know and experience the joy of giving unless we teach them that the greater pleasure in life lies in the art of giving rather than receiving.

What Does Giving Bring Joy To?

Numerous studies have demonstrated that practicing giving to others is a surefire way to live a happy and satisfied life. Giving someone something doesn't necessarily need to take the shape of a tangible object; it may also take the form of a smile, a kind word, a sympathetic ear, your whole attention, a genuine interest in their lives, active listening, guidance, and just being there to make others feel seen and heard. Presents are also considerate expressions of affection and they count. The goal to provide something beyond intensity is what counts.

THE CONTEXT:

Giving to others is a declaration that they are important to you and the world in which we live. When we give to others, we create a support system in which all thrive. There are numerous benefits of making the practice of giving your life-long habit.

THE PROCEDURE:

All of the college's employees and students gathered the various supplies needed in an orphanage, such as rice, oil, sugar, and vegetables, and gave them to the kids in the adjacent orphanage in Narayanapuram.

Proof of Achievement:

Students' memories of this were permanently altered as a result of discovering the thrill of giving and beginning to respond favorably to such outreach initiatives. This enhanced the institution's renown.

Any challenges encountered and the methods used to get beyond them:
Lack of funds to purchase the necessary items The staff and students' kindness in providing financial support for the students' purchases of goods helps them overcome this challenge.

Resources needed:

Cash for transportation to the orphanage and purchases of items to be donated.

Students and staff of SAS GDC collected provisions from all the generous donors and distributed to the boys in the orphanage at Narayanapuram
